

SIRA

NSW Workers
Compensation Scheme

ORS is excited to announce we can now provide psychological treatment services for SIRA referrals under the NSW Workers Compensation scheme.

At ORS, we understand the importance of ensuring injured workers have access to healthcare services that are goal orientated, evidence-based and clinically justified to support their return-to-work. That's why our state-wide team of registered and endorsed psychologists are now offering treatment intervention services funded by the NSW Workers Compensation scheme regulated by SIRA.

These services are available face-to-face across select ORS locations and via telehealth* to ensure support is accessible when and where it's needed.

ORS can support referrals for clients experiencing:

- › Anxiety, depression, and mood-related disorders
- › Adjustment difficulties, including grief and loss
- › Trauma and stress
- › Alcohol and substance use
- › Emotion regulation and interpersonal difficulties

Our psychologists provide respectful, evidence-informed therapy tailored to each person's unique experiences and return-to-work goals, and work collaboratively with insurer case managers, nominated treating doctors, and the wider treating team to support workers in their recovery from work-related injuries or illnesses.

How to Refer?
